Glasgow, 28th February: Apple Arcade have released episode three of Murder Mystery Machine, an episodic puzzle-solving detective video game produced by Blazing Griffin, titled 'The Fire of Thine Eyes'.

'The Fire of Thine Eyes' sees detectives Cassandra 'CC' Clarke and partner Nathaniel 'Nate' Houston investigate the death of an unknown victim found dead in a parking lot. A local jazz club is the only lead in a case which soon unravels to much more than a simple killing.

The episode includes new locations and puzzles to solve, and also brings with it gameplay improvements to previous episodes, including a new tutorial, and control and UI tweaks, to make episode three of Murder Mystery Machine even more compelling. Players will tackle a brand-new case with new locations, characters and challenges and witness the continuation of the game's central story. The game is also now available in 14 languages, including Arabic, Japanese, Korean and Russian.

Justin Alae-Carew, Co-Head of Games, Blazing Griffin, — "We've had a great response to our episodic approach, something we feel is perfect for the Apple Arcade platform. Our aim has been to recreate the structure of procedural police dramas on TV and through Apple Arcade we're able to provide regular episodic drops. without needing to charge for each individual episode. Looking ahead, we've got a whole season of content ahead of us, and we're hoping players will enjoy what's to come as our story unfolds."

Murder Mystery Machine is only available on Apple Arcade via iPhone, iPad, Mac and Apple TV. For more detail visit: Murder Mystery Machine and Apple Arcade.
